INTERACTIVE LABS: YOUR REPORT

Test Ayesha

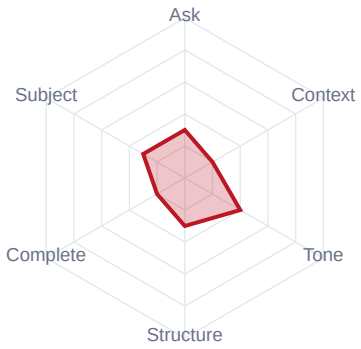
Table 1 | Backend test | 2026-11-10 | TEST RUN

Polite tone, but the scenario text was pasted in and the email never actually declines or offers an alternative.

2/6	44%	8.5/30
Spot the Slip	Channel judgement	Writing

Key: Spot the Slip = planted mistakes flagged out of total. Channel judgement = best answer full credit, acceptable half. Writing = average rubric total of your two emails.

WRITING PROFILE



Clear ask	1.5 / 5
Context	1 / 5
Courtesy and tone	2 / 5
Structure and length	1.5 / 5
Completeness	1 / 5
Subject line	1.5 / 5

Key: average of your two emails in each area. 1 = development priority, 3 = adequate, 5 = strong.

HOW YOU SPOTTED AND CHOSE

Caught: Subject, Completeness. To watch: Recipients, Greeting and name, Clarity.

Channels to revisit: Monthly report (best: Email); Running late (best: Message); Client order change (best: Email).

Key: mistake types you caught in Spot the Slip and the Pick the Channel situations worth another look.

YOUR EMAIL, IMPROVED

YOU WROTE

(no subject)

hi mariam need this asap thanks

A STRONGER VERSION

Unable to attend 10 am project meeting tomorrow

Dear Mariam, I am sorry, but I cannot attend tomorrow's 10 am project meeting. I have a plant safety induction at the same time, and it is mandatory for new joiners. Could you please share the meeting notes or recording afterwards? I would also be happy to catch up with you or a colleague for a quick briefing, and to...

Key: the opening of your lower-scoring email next to a polished version with the same intent.

STRENGTHS

- Polite opening: "I hope you are well" and a courteous closing "Thank you".
- Gives a clear reply time: "by Thursday 3 pm", plus offers a quick call.

Key: what to keep doing, and the areas that will lift your writing most.

DEVELOPMENT AREAS

- Replace the pasted scenario text with your own words explaining you cannot help.
- Say clearly that you cannot help with the Friday slides, and thank Usman.

NEXT STEPS

- Put your main request in the first two lines.
- Give a specific date and time instead of "asap".
- Write a subject that says what the email is about.

PEER NOTE

Does well: Polite and clear opening.

One fix: Add a specific deadline.

Key: feedback from the table that reviewed your email. Peer feedback, separate from your scores.

We will revisit this at your 30-day check-in.